INTRODUCTION

Plaintiffs Aetna Life Insurance Company and Aetna Health of California, Inc. (collectively, “Aetna”) filed this case against more than a dozen parties alleging a widespread fraudulent scheme. But the Zealie Defendants are not part of that scheme. Whatever the merits of Aetna’s claims of fraud, the Zealie Defendants are innocent parties that do not belong in the present lawsuit. Aetna alleges that several of the Defendants in this case—which the FAC terms the “Treatment Entity Defendants”—engaged in a conspiracy to commit healthcare fraud by inducing Aetna members to enroll in substance abuse treatment programs, using medically unnecessary treatments, preventing the patients’ recovery, then fraudulently increasing the amounts billed to Aetna. The FAC goes on to claim—illogically—that Zealie somehow “brought th[is] fraudulent scheme to market” by providing the billing services for which they were hired. However Zealie is—as Aetna’s FAC recognizes—simply a vendor that performed billing services for some, but not all, of the “Treatment Entity Defendants.”

Zealie processed bills for claims submitted by those treatment centers. In other words, Zealie processed the claims it received from the Treatment Entity Defendants based on information provided by those entities, without any way of determining the truth or falsity of the information provided. Zealie was not in any way involved in the decisions of whether and how often to treat patients, nor was it privy to the determinations that certain treatments were (or were not) medically necessary. Accordingly, Zealie could not have participated in the scheme set out in Aetna's FAC. And as the founder of Zealie, Mr. Beheshti was even more removed from this conduct; he is an individual (not the business) who did not have any day-to-day interactions with the defendant treatment centers. As such, the allegations against the Zealie Defendants are insufficient to state a plausible claim for relief. The few specific allegations against the Zealie Defendants are facially false, irrelevant to the case, or, if true, do not give rise to any cause of action. As just one example, Aetna in its pleading repeatedly confuses two entirely separate entities, despite being well aware that they are entirely

1 separate. In so doing, Aetna seems to be hoping to capitalize on that confusion to impute
2 involvement in the scheme to the Zealie Defendants (in particular, to imply that Mr.
3 Beheshti was the subject of a federal indictment where there is no actual basis for doing 4 so). Were Aetna’s allegations made in a public forum, these statements would be 5 slanderous and actionable for the severe damages they have caused.

6 In addition to having no basis in fact, Aetna’s claims against the Zealie 7 Defendants fail as a matter of law. Aetna brings a series of baseless allegations 8 purporting to support claims for violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt 9 Organizations Act (“RICO”) and conspiracy. Aetna’s substantive RICO claim fails as 10 to the Zealie Defendants because Aetna has failed to properly plead several required 11 elements. Aetna’s FAC does not even allege the most basic element: the existence of a 12 RICO enterprise. The FAC likewise fails to detail a pattern of racketeering activity. And 13 because the substantive RICO claim is insufficient, the RICO conspiracy claim falls 14 along with it. Even worse, these reckless RICO claims patently lack any good faith 15 basis.

16 Aetna’s other claims fail because Aetna fundamentally misunderstands and 17 (seemingly intentionally) misrepresents Zealie’s business model. Aetna characterizes 18 Zealie’s business as an essential part of the alleged fraudulent scheme, stating that the 19 Zealie Defendants “[brought] the[] fraud to the insurance marketplace.” In reality, 20 Zealie is a third-party administrative claims and bill processing vendor. It has no 21 interaction with patients, no input into the decisions as to what treatment to provide or 22 not provide, and no input or insight into whether such treatment is medically necessary 23 or appropriate. Zealie receives claims from healthcare providers, processes these claims 24 based on information provided, and submits them to health insurance companies. To 25 the extent that Zealie “consults” on its customers’ invoices, it is to ensure that the 26 treatments are being correctly submitted to insurers (i.e., that they are charged under the 27 proper billing code for a given treatment). In effect, Zealie does little more than code 28 the billing information sent to it by its clients. If any claims were in fact improperly

1 submitted, as Aetna alleges, that would necessarily be because the information provided 2 to Zealie was inaccurate in the first place. Garbage in, garbage out. Aetna’s claims fail
3 as to Zealie because Zealie did not act, and could not have acted based on Aetna’s 4 allegations as plead, in a fraudulent or illegal fashion.

5 Accordingly, Aetna fails to meet the requirements of Federal Rules of Civil 6 Procedure 9(b) and 12(b) as to the Zealie Defendants, and the FAC should be dismissed 7 as to them. Because Aetna’s claims fail as a factual matter in addition to failing as a 8 matter of law, Aetna’s second attempt to plead these claims in the FAC should be 9 dismissed with prejudice. Aetna’s claims against the Zealie Defendants are based on a 10 reckless disregard for the truth, were not pled in good faith, are an abuse of process, and 11 have significantly damaged Zealie (in particular, by recklessly including Zealie in the 12 scattershot group pleading of alleged RICO violations).

13 STATEMENT OF FACTS

14 Aetna alleges that the Treating Entity Defendants induced Aetna members to 15 enroll in treatment programs and then “weaponized addiction and pushed relapse to 16 prevent recovery,” thus extending the time patients spent in the programs and 17 fraudulently increasing the amounts billed. FAC ¶¶ 1, 94–105. Aetna also alleges other 18 fraudulent actions by these Defendants, including offering kickbacks to remain 19 enrolled, offering drugs to patients, paying “body brokers” to find patients to enroll, not 20 charging any cost-share for the treatments, and enrolling patients in health benefit plans.
21 Id. ¶¶ 73–93. Aetna further alleges that the majority of the Treating Entity Defendants 22 billed for services that were either not performed or performed “below acceptable 23 standards of care.” Id. ¶ 142. Finally, Aetna alleges that the Treating Entity Defendants 24 concealed their purportedly fraudulent conduct from Aetna. Id. ¶ 102. The majority of 25 the purported scheme focuses on the treatment (or mistreatment) of patients by the 26 Treating Entity Defendants—conduct in which the Zealie Defendants were not 27 involved. See, e.g., id. ¶ 166.

1        Zealie and Mr. Beheshti, the only so-called “Billing Entity Defendants,” are 2        alleged to “provide specialized administrative billing services to the . . . Treatment 3        Entity Defendants.” Id. ¶ 40. Aetna alleges that Zealie “handles the submission of the 4        claim forms for these entities that directly result in payment,” and further alleges that 5        Zealie’s “employees also serve in various roles for these entities.” Id. Beheshti is alleged 6        to be Zealie’s founder and operator. Id. ¶ 41. However, these allegations against Zealie
7        do not give rise to any actionable claim, and, in fact, demonstrate that the Zealie 8        Defendants were not part of the alleged fraud scheme and are not properly named.
9        Zealie merely provided administrative billing services and submitted claims to Aetna 10       based on information provided by the Treating Entity Defendants. Despite a lack of any 11       specific acts by Zealie or Mr. Beheshti, Aetna alleges causes of action for (1) fraud; 12       (2) aiding and abetting fraud; (3) negligent misrepresentation; (4) intentional 13       interference with economic/contractual relationship; (5) civil RICO under 18 U.S.C.
14       § 1962(c); (6) conspiracy to violate RICO under § 1962(d); (7) violations of 15       California’s Unfair Competition Law (the “UCL”), Business and Professional Code § 16       17200, et seq.; (8) money had and received; (9) unjust enrichment/quantum 17       meruit/restitution. Id. ¶¶ 135–200.<sup>1</sup> The Zealie Defendants move to dismiss each of the 18       causes of action against them with prejudice.

19       ARGUMENT

20       I. Legal Standard

21       To survive dismissal, “the complaint ‘must provide sufficient allegations of 22       underlying facts to give fair notice and to enable the opposing party to defend itself 23       effectively.’” Caltex Plastics, Inc. v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 824 F.3d 1156, 1159 (9th 24       Cir. 2016) (quoting Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1216 (9th Cir. 2011)). “Furthermore, 25       the underlying factual allegations must ‘plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief.’” Id.
26       (quoting Starr, 652 F.3d at 1216). “Nor is the court required to accept as true allegations

27      

28       <sup>1</sup> Aetna additionally asserts counts for restitution and injunctive relief under 29 U.S.C.
§ 1132(a)(3). Given Aetna’s failure to demonstrate an entitlement to relief on each of the substantive claims, these counts for remedies should also be dismissed.

1 that are merely conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable
2 inferences.” Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001) 3 (citing Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754–55 (9th Cir. 1994)). As to 4 Aetna’s fraud and negligent misrepresentation claims, “[i]t is well-established in the 5 Ninth Circuit that both claims for fraud and negligent misrepresentation must meet Rule 6 9(b)’s particularity requirements.” Neilson v. Union Bank of Cal., N.A., 290 F. Supp. 2d 12 requirements of Rule (8)(a).”).

13 Rule 9(b) imposes a heightened pleading standard on a party alleging fraud. Fed.
14 R. Civ. P. 9(b) (requiring a party to “state with particularity the circumstances 15 constituting fraud or mistake”). “Averments of fraud must be accompanied by ‘the who, 16 what, when, where, and how’ of the misconduct charged.” Vess v. CIBA-Geigy Corp.
17 USA, 317 F.3d 1097, 1106 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting Cooper v. Pickett, 137 F.3d 616, 18 627 (9th Cir. 1997)); see also Annunziato v. Guthrie, 2021 WL 5015496, at *5 (C.D.
19 Cal. Oct. 26, 2021) (citing Bly-Magee v. Cal., 236 F.3d 1014, 1019 (9th Cir. 2001))
20 (“Broad allegations lacking particularized supporting detail are insufficient.”). This 21 heightened pleading standard likewise applies to a RICO claim that is predicated upon 22 purported acts of fraud. “When ‘RICO claims are based on fraud, these allegations must 23 meet Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b)’s heightened pleading standard.’” JJ Mktg.
24 Grp. Inc. v. K in LA Entm’t, 2022 WL 17098185, at *7 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 1, 2022) (quoting 25 Holloway v. Clackamas River Water, 739 Fed. App’x 868, 869 (9th Cir. 2018)).
26 Specifically, where “a RICO claim is based on a predicate offense of fraud, the 27 ‘circumstances constituting fraud shall be stated with particularity’ pursuant to Rule 28 9(b).” Kamal v. Cnty. of L.A., 2019 WL 2502433, at *9 (C.D. Cal. May 2, 2019).

1 (cleaned up) (quoting Edwards v. Marin Park, Inc., 356 F.3d 1058, 1066 (9th Cir.
2 2004)). Rule 9(b) requires that plaintiff “detail with particularity the time, place, and 3 manner of each act of fraud, plus the role of each defendant in each scheme.” Wolov v.
4 Duel, 2023 WL 2780369, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 28, 2023) (quoting Lancaster Cnty.
5 Hosp. v. Antelope Valley Hosp. Dist., 940 F.2d 397, 405 (9th Cir. 1991)).

6 In short, to plead a proper RICO claim, a plaintiff is required to assert various 7 elements with a heightened level of specificity. And “Rule 9(b) applies to RICO 8 conspiracy claims as well,” since “the RICO claims are undoubtedly grounded in fraud, 9 the conspiracy allegations must satisfy the heightened pleading requirements of Rule 10 9(b).” Id. (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). As detailed below, Aetna’s 11 FAC fails to state a cognizable legal theory as to the Zealie Defendants and its factual 12 allegations fail to plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief. Thus, the FAC should be 13 dismissed in its entirety as to the Zealie Defendants, with prejudice.

14 II. Aetna Fails to State Non-RICO Claims Against the Zealie Defendants

15 A. The FAC Relies on Factually Inconsistent / Irrelevant 16 Allegations

17 The FAC alleges that Mr. Beheshti was “the sole managing member” of 18 Defendant Healing Path Detox LLC “at its founding.” FAC ¶ 42. The same paragraph 19 alleges false, unsupported and disparaging accusations that Mr. Beheshti “also helped 20 start and/or was a part owner of Healing Path Recovery LLC, a related entity that did 21 business as Healing Path Detox. Healing Path Recovery doing business as Healing Path
22 Detox was identified as participating and submitting claims for patients obtained 23 through illegal body brokering in a federal indictment.” Id.; see also id. ¶ 109 (“As 24 noted above, Defendant Beheshti was the co-owner and/or CEO of Defendant Healing 25 Path and Get Real Recovery, both of which were the subject of an indictment[] filed in 26 March of 2021.”). These allegations are simply untrue and appear designed to smear 27 Mr. Beheshti as a criminal with an allegation that is both false and entirely unrelated 28 to this case. The Court should take judicial notice of the fact that Healing Path Recovery

1 LLC and Healing Path Detox LLC are separate corporate entities.<sup>2</sup> “Generally, district 2 courts may not consider material outside the pleadings when assessing the sufficiency
3 of a complaint. . . .” Khoja v. Orexigen Therapeutics, Inc., 899 F.3d 988, 998 (9th Cir.
4 2018) (citation omitted). However, here, because the Secretary of State website 5 establishes these companies are different, the allegations in paragraphs 42 and 109 of 6 the FAC that conflate these two separate entities in order to imply that Mr. Beheshti is 7 associated with criminality should be entirely disregarded.<sup>3</sup>

8 B. Each of Aetna’s Non-RICO Claims Fail

9 i. The FAC Fails to Allege the Required Rule 9 10 Particularity

11 “The elements of negligent misrepresentation are (1) the misrepresentation of a 12 past or existing material fact, (2) without reasonable ground for believing it to be true, 13 (3) with intent to induce another’s reliance on the fact misrepresented, (4) justifiable 14 reliance on the misrepresentation, and (5) resulting damage.” Tharpe v. Hyundai Motor 15 Am., Inc., 2023 WL 3150112, at *6 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 16, 2023) (citing Apollo Cap. Fund, 16 LLC v. Roth Cap. Partners, LLC, 158 Cal. App. 4th 226, 243 (2007)). The allegations 17 against the Zealie Defendants do not support a negligent misrepresentation claim 18 because they fail to show requisite particularity. Crucially, Aetna does not sufficiently 19 allege, with particularity, the specific misrepresentations the Zealie Defendants made 20

21 <sup>2</sup> Healing Path Recovery LLC has California LLC No. 201704710528, was founded 22 January 14, 2014, it was suspended as of December 3, 2018, and it had its principal and mailing addresses at 1800 N. Vine Street, Los Angeles, CA 90028.

23 Healing Path Detox LLC has California LLC No. 201621410110, was founded July 29, 2016, it is an active California LLC, and it has its principal and mailing addresses at 7661 Amberleaf Circle, Unit 1, Huntington Beach, CA 92648.

24 <sup>3</sup> The Court may take judicial notice of a fact under where a fact “is ‘generally known,’ 25 or ‘can be accurately and readily determined from sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned.’” Id. at 999 (quoting Fed. R. Evid. 201(b)). “[T]he business 26 entity search results from the California Secretary of State website is a public record and a proper subject of judicial notice.” Harwood v. Option Care Enter., 2019 WL 27 1952692, at *3 (C.D. Cal. May 2, 2019) (citation omitted); *see also L’Garde, Inc. v.
Raytheon Space & Airborne Sys.*, 805 F. Supp. 2d 932, 938 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (“[T]he accuracy of the results of records searches from the Secretary of State . . . cannot 28 reasonably be questioned.”).

1 and exactly how these misstatements came to be submitted to Aetna. See, e.g., Vess, 2 317 F.3d at 1106 (requiring negligent misrepresentation plaintiffs to plead the “who,
3 what, when, where, and how of the misconduct charged”). The FAC does not allege 4 who at Zealie made the allegedly fraudulent misrepresentations to Aetna, the identity 5 of the recipients of the misrepresentations, and—crucially—fails to state exactly what 6 was misrepresented, how the misrepresentations came to be, and whether the personnel 7 at Zealie who made the allegedly fraudulent claims to Aetna knew them to be false. All 8 the FAC states is that some unidentified alleged misrepresentations were made by some 9 unidentified person at Zealie at some unidentified time to some other unidentified 10 person. See Canas v. Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC, 2015 WL 5601838, at *6 (C.D. Cal.
11 Sept. 21, 2015) (“Without a clear statement of the alleged false statement and factual 12 allegations demonstrating why the statement is false, Canas does not state a claim for 13 negligent misrepresentation.”). The FAC thus does not state a negligent 14 misrepresentation claim against the Zealie Defendants. See, e.g., Prime Healthcare
15 Servs. v. Humana Ins. Co., 2017 WL 8220437, at *3–5 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 7, 2017) 16 (negligent misrepresentation claim inadequately pled for failure to allege when and 17 where misrepresentations were made, who made them, or to whom).

18 Aetna’s fraud claim also fails to meet Rule 9(b)’s particularity requirement. “The 19 elements of a cause of action for fraud in California are: ‘(a) misrepresentation (false 20 representation, concealment, or nondisclosure); (b) knowledge of falsity (or scienter); 21 (c) intent to defraud, i.e., to induce reliance; (d) justifiable reliance; and (e) resulting 22 damage.’” Kearns v. Ford Motor Co., 567 F.3d 1120, 1126 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting 23 Engalla v. Permanente Med. Grp., Inc., 15 Cal. 4th 951, 974 (Cal. 1997)) (emphasis 24 removed). The FAC does not allege sufficient facts to establish these elements as to the 25 Zealie Defendants because it does not identify any specific statements they made, let 26 alone the requisite “who, what, when, where, and how of the misconduct charged.” 27 Vess, 317 F.3d at 1106. Therefore, the fraud claim should be dismissed, as well. See,
28 e.g., Annunziato v. Guthrie, 2021 WL 5015496, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 26, 2021)

1 (dismissing fraudulent misrepresentation claim where the non-specific allegations 2 lacked particularized supporting detail); Humphreys v. Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC, 3 2009 WL 10672594, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 23, 2009) (dismissing fraud claim where 4 plaintiff failed to indicate when and where alleged fraud took place, or who made the 5 misrepresentations).

6 ii. Aiding and Abetting Fraud

7 Aetna’s aiding and abetting fraud claim also fails to meet the Rule 9 standard.
8 Aetna is required to plead that the Zealie Defendants “had actual knowledge of the fraud 9 and substantially participated in it.” Allstate Ins. Co. v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., 824 F.
10 Supp. 2d 1164, 1188 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (citation omitted). To meet the requirements of 11 Rule 9, “substantial assistance” of the underlying fraud “must be pleaded with 12 particularity.” Id. Aetna fails to plead either actual knowledge or substantial assistance.
13 Pleading “actual knowledge” under California law requires more than pleading 14 knowledge of “suspicious activities” or that the underlying fraudsters “were engaged in 15 wrongful or illegal conduct.” Casey v. U.S. Bank Nat'l Ass'n, 127 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 16 1151–52 (2005). As explained in Casey, even pleading in essence—as Aetna fails to do 17 here—that defendant “knew something fishy was going on” is not enough. Id. at 1149 18 (emphasis in original).

19 Aetna also fails to plead the Zealie Defendants’ “substantial assistance” in any 20 fraud. “Substantial assistance requires a significant and active, as well as a knowing 21 participation in the wrong.” Impac Funding Corp. v. Endresen, 2015 WL 13916649, at 22 *3 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 16, 2015) (quotation omitted). “A defendant therefore provides 23 substantial assistance when it affirmatively assists, helps conceal, or by virtue of failing 24 to act when required to do so enables the fraud to proceed.” Id. (quotation omitted).
25 “[A]verments of substantial assistance must be specific enough to give defendants 26 notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged. . . .” 27 Id. (quotation omitted and cleaned up). Knowledge is the key to pleading “substantial 28 assistance”; i.e., that defendant knew that “ordinary business transactions” (here, submitting bills to Aetna) “were assisting the customer in committing a specific tort.” Casey, 127 Cal. App. 4th at 1145.

Aetna has thus failed to specifically plead either “actual knowledge” or “substantial assistance.” Nowhere does the FAC allege that Zealie knew that any bills it submitted on behalf of customers were fraudulent. Aetna’s allegations are bereft of “actual knowledge”—Aetna has pleaded an inference of knowledge from the irrelevant, and in some cases factually incorrect, allegations about Mr. Beheshti (see FAC ¶¶ 109–10). These include vague allegations about potential knowledge of supposed “body brokering,” some sort of “consultation” (see id. ¶¶ 110, 115–16), and that one Zealie employee allegedly worked as the billing agent for one of the Treatment Entity Defendants (which itself is unsurprising, considering that it is undisputed that Zealie submitted bills on behalf of some of the Treatment Entity Defendants which were its customers) (see id. ¶ 40).

iii. Aetna's Tortious Interference Claims Fail Because No Tortious Acts or Intent Is Alleged

Aetna’s tortious interference and intentional interference with an economic or contractual relationship claims also fail. To plead a tortious interference with contractual relations claim, Aetna must show ““(1) a valid contract between plaintiff and a third party; (2) the defendant’s knowledge of this contract; (3) the defendant’s intentional acts designed to induce a breach or disruption of the contractual relationship; (4) actual breach or disruption of the contractual relationship; and (5) resulting damage.”” Virun, Inc. v. Cymbiotika LLC, 2023 WL 8351529, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 6, 2023) (quoting Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co., 19 Cal. 4th 26, 55 (1998)). Aetna fails to properly allege the first and third elements. Aetna fails to identify the contracting parties and contracts, as required. See Nestle USA, Inc. v. Crest Foods, Inc., 2017 WL 3267665, at *12 (quoting United Nat'l Maint., Inc. v. San Diego Convention Ctr., Inc., 766 F.3d 1002, 1009 (9th Cir. 2014)) (“To understand whether a [plaintiff’s] performance was disrupted requires the district court to determine what contractual

1 rights it possessed.”). Conclusory yet vague allegations about contracts, as Aetna makes 2 in paragraph 158, are insufficient. See id. (dismissing tortious interference claim that 3 failed to identify the existing contracts allegedly disrupted); Gottex Fund Mgmt. Ltd. V.
4 MKA Real Estate Opportunity Fund I, LLC, 2013 WL 12131260, at *3 (citation 5 omitted) (dismissing interference claim where plaintiff merely pleaded “conclusory 6 allegations” that defendant “contracted with numerous vendors who supply services” 7 but did not identify specific contracts or parties).

8 Aetna also does not sufficiently allege that the Zealie Defendants committed 9 intentional acts designed to induce a breach or disruption. See Korea Supply Co. v.
10 Lockheed Martin Corp., 29 Cal.4th 1134, 1157 (2003) (quotation omitted) (plaintiff 11 must allege defendant “knew that the interference is certain or substantially certain to 12 occur as a result of [its] action”). All Aetna could possibly allege is that Zealie was a 13 third-party claims processor who processed the allegedly problematic claims based on 14 the information presented to it by the Treating Entity Defendants, the same way Zealie 15 does for all of its clients. FAC ¶ 108 (Zalie submitted the claim forms containing 16 “misrepresentations therein that are at-issue in this suit for the treating entities”). This 17 is insufficient to support an interference claim because it does not show an intent to 18 interfere with Aetna’s unidentified contracts. See First Am. Cinema, LLC v. Chicken
19 Soup for the Soul Entm’t, Inc., 2020 WL 11025582, at *6 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 12, 2020) 20 (dismissing interference claim where plaintiff did not allege how the allegedly tortious 21 “action was specifically done with knowledge that it would substantially interfere with 22 the specific contract at issue”).

23 iv. Aetna’s Unjust Enrichment Claim Fails Because Unjust Enrichment Is Not a Valid Cause of Action

24 California does not recognize a cause of action for unjust enrichment. See Baiul- 25 Farina v. Lemire, 804 Fed. App’x 533, 537 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting McBride v.
26 Boughton, 123 Cal. App. 4th 379, 387 (2004)) (“unjust enrichment is not a cause of 27 action under California law”); Astiana v. Hain Celestial Grp., Inc., 783 F.3d 753, 762 28 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Durell v. Sharp Healthcare, 183 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1370 (2010)) (“in California, there is not a standalone cause of action for ‘unjust enrichment’’); Blue Wing Airlines Fin. v. Unical Aviation, Inc. & Platinum Equity, 2023 WL 3149276, at *2 n.2 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 8, 2023) (“the Court follows the more widely accepted principle that there is no separate cause of action for unjust enrichment’’). Even if California recognized a cause of action for unjust enrichment, the claim would fail because Zealie was paid in arms-length transactions—by its clients, not Aetna—for the claims processing services it provided. Aetna acknowledges that this is how Zealie’s business model works. FAC ¶ 40. To the extent that Aetna is able to demonstrate someone unjustly or inequitably received a benefit from Aetna, it would be the Treating Entity Defendants who supposedly billed for services not provided or that were not medically necessary. See, e.g., id. ¶¶ 94–101. These facts do not suggest the Zealie Defendants were unjustly enriched, since the Zealie Defendants did nothing other than submit claims for reimbursement based on details provided by others.

v. Aetna's Money Had and Received Claim Fails Because Aetna Is Not Indebted to the Zealie Defendants

16 Aetna fails to properly plead a money had and received claim as to the Zealie 17 Defendants because they fail to allege that the Zealie Defendants are indebted to them.
18 “A cause of action for money had and received is stated if it is alleged the defendant is 19 indebted to the plaintiff in a certain sum for money had and received by the defendant 20 for the use of the plaintiff.” Kandel v. Brother Int’l Corp., 2009 WL 9100406, at *1 21 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2009) (quoting Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Zerin, 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 22 460 (1997)). “In more detail, [p]laintiffs must allege ‘(1) the statement of indebtedness 23 in a certain sum, (2) the consideration, i.e., goods sold, work done, etc., and (3) 24 nonpayment.’” Id. (quoting Zerin, 53 Cal. App. 4th at 460). The sum of money alleged 25 to be indebted must be something other than “a repackaging of [plaintiffs’] damages 26 resulting from their other claims.” Id. Aetna merely tacks its money had and received 27 claim onto its other claims in the FAC; it makes no effort to distinguish it from its other 28 claims or argue that the Zealie Defendants are indebted to them. See id. In short, Aetna

1 does not meet any of the elements—indebtedness in a certain sum, consideration, or 2 nonpayment. See FAC ¶¶ 189–94.

3 vi. Aetna Fails to Allege that the Zealie Defendants Did 4 Anything Unlawful, Unfair, or Fraudulent

5 The UCL “prohibits ‘unfair competition,’ which it broadly defined as ‘any 6 unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice’....” Lozano v. AT&T Wireless 7 Servs., Inc., 504 F.3d 718, 731 (9th Cir. 2007) (quoting Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 8 17200). The statute is in the disjunctive—it is violated where defendant’s act or practice 9 is unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent. See id. Aetna has not alleged that the Zealie 10 Defendants have done any of the above. It does not allege any unfair acts besides merely 11 using the word “unfair”. See FAC ¶ 188. Its allegations regarding unfair business 12 practices are entirely about the Treatment Entity Defendants, with the only allegation 13 about the Zealie Defendants that their “submission of claims [was] infected” by 14 fraudulent conduct. Id. ¶ 186. As detailed herein, Aetna has not properly alleged fraud 15 claims against the Zealie Defendants, and it may not then launder its insufficient fraud 16 claims through its UCL claim. Aetna’s allegations of unlawful action fail where 17 plaintiff’s predicate claim fails, its UCL claim fails as well. See, e.g., Panno v. Wells 18 Fargo Bank, N.A., 2016 WL 7495834, at *10 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2016) (citing Martinez 19 v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg., Inc., 598 F.3d 549, 558 (9th Cir. 2010)).

20 III. Aetna’s Claims for Violation of RICO and Conspiracy Fail

21 In order to plead a claim for violation of the RICO Act, a plaintiff is required to 22 allege the following elements: “(1) conduct (2) of an enterprise (3) through a pattern (4) 23 of racketeering activity (5) causing injury to plaintiffs’ business or property.” *Ove v.
24 Gwinn*, 264 F.3d 817, 825 (9th Cir. 2001) (citing 18 U.S.C. § 1964(c)) (internal 25 quotations omitted). Each of these elements is technical in nature and necessary to the 26 success of a RICO claim. The Supreme Court has made clear that Congress did not 27 intend to extend RICO liability beyond those who participate in the operation or 28 management of a criminal enterprise through a pattern of racketeering activity. Reves v.

1     Ernst & Young, 507 U.S. 170, 183–84 (1993). The failure to establish any element is 2 fatal to a RICO claim. See, e.g., Rae v. Union Bank, 725 F.2d 478, 480–81 (9th Cir.
3 1984) (affirming the district court’s dismissal of the plaintiff’s RICO claim where 4 plaintiff failed to meet the enterprise requirement).

5     Civil RICO actions are often disposed of on a motion to dismiss. See, e.g., Gomez
6 v. Guthy-Renker, LLC, 2015 WL 4270042, at *11 (C.D. Cal. July 13, 2015) (dismissing 7 RICO claim based on the lack of a RICO enterprise); Sanchez v. One W. Bank, 2011 8 WL 13224623, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2011) (dismissing RICO claims that did not 9 meet Rule 9(b)’s heightened pleading requirements and did not allege two predicate 10 acts with sufficient continuity and relationship). The Ninth Circuit has advised that 11 courts “should [] strive to flush out frivolous RICO allegations at an early stage of the 12 litigation.” Wagh v. Metris Direct Servs., Inc., 348 F.3d 1102, 1108 (9th Cir. 2003) 13 (internal quotation marks omitted), overruled on other grounds, Odom v. Microsoft 14 Corp., 486 F.3d 541, 551 (9th Cir. 2007). “Courts look with particular scrutiny at claims 15 for a civil RICO, given RICO’s damaging effects on the reputations of individuals 16 alleged to be engaged in RICO enterprises and conspiracies.” Spiteri v. Russo, 2013 WL 17 4806960, at *45 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 7, 2013). In short, a “[p]laintiff’s burden is high when 18 pleading RICO allegations.” Id.

19     Though the FAC contends that paragraphs 73 through 134 set forth the factual 20 allegations in support of Aetna’s RICO claim, very few of those paragraphs implicate 21 Zealie or Mr. Beheshti and even fewer actually mention them specifically. See FAC 22 ¶¶ 106–21. And even those allegations refer to entirely unrelated conduct, which does 23 not support Aetna’s RICO allegations. See, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 109–12 (referring to 24 indictments entirely unrelated to the Zealie Defendants). Other than pro forma 25 recitations of the claim’s elements, the FAC lacks the factual support to substantiate the 26 legal elements of Aetna’s RICO claim. The allegations assert only that Zealie was an 27 administrative service provider to various of the treating entity defendants and fails to 28 demonstrate the Zealie Defendants’ participation in any RICO enterprise. As to Mr.

1 Beheshti, the FAC does not contain any of the requisite allegations. In short, Aetna’s 2 FAC—it’s second attempt to plead these claims—continues to suffer fatal factual and 3 legal insufficiencies.

4 First, Aetna has failed to properly allege the existence of a RICO enterprise.
5 Second and relatedly, service providers are not proper defendants in RICO matters.
6 Third, Aetna has not alleged and cannot allege that the Zealie Defendants “conduct[ed] 7 or participate[d], directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such enterprise’s affairs.” 18 8 U.S.C. § 1962(c). Fourth, the FAC does not allege the existence of either open-ended 9 or closed-ended continuity. Fifth and finally, assuming the allegations in the FAC are 10 true, Aetna has, at best, alleged a claim for fraud (which, as described above, also fails).
11 In any event, run-of-the-mill fraud is not the same as knowingly participating in a 12 racketeer influenced and corrupt organization (RICO). See, e.g., BSA Framing, Inc. v.
13 Applied Underwriters, Inc., 2018 WL 11462083, at *8 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 27, 2018) (It is 14 “unsurprisingly, not the law” that “every corporation facing a run-of-the-mill fraud 15 claim” also faces a RICO claim.). Each of these issues independently warrants dismissal 16 of the RICO claim. Taken together, the severe inherent flaws in Aetna’s FAC should 17 result in dismissal with prejudice.

18 A. Aetna Does Not Allege the Existence of a RICO Enterprise

19 A RICO enterprise is “any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or 20 other legal entity,” 18 U.S.C. § 1961(5), that “exists apart from the pattern of 21 racketeering in which it engages.” Jensen v. E.F. Hutton & Co., 1984 WL 2392, at *3 22 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 26, 1984). It is an entity that is separate and apart from the individuals 23 alleged to have participated in the RICO scheme. Schreiber Distrib. Co. v. Serv-Well 24 Furniture Co., 806 F.2d 1393, 1395 (9th Cir. 1986). It must also be distinct from the 25 pattern of activity in which the criminal enterprise engages. Id. An “association-in-fact 26 enterprise is a group of persons associated together for a common purpose of engaging 27 in a course of conduct.” Boyle v. United States, 556 U.S. 938, 946 (2009) (quotation 28 omitted). “Such an enterprise . . . is proved by evidence of an ongoing organization,

1 formal or informal, and by evidence that the various associates function as a continuing 2 unit.” Id. at 945. It “must have at least three structural features: a purpose, relationships 3 among those associated with the enterprise, and longevity sufficient to permit these 4 associates to pursue the enterprise’s purpose.” Id. “In order to avoid dismissal for failure
5 to state a claim, a [RICO] plaintiff must plead specific facts, not mere conclusory 6 allegations, which establish the existence of [such] an enterprise.” Comwest, Inc. v. Am.
7 Operator Servs., Inc., 765 F. Supp. 1467, 1475 (C.D. Cal. 1991) (quoting Elliott v.
8 Foufas, 867 F.2d 877, 881 (5th Cir. 1989)).

9 Aetna’s allegations are conclusory and do not allege an enterprise existed 10 separately from the participating entities and individuals. The FAC asserts, without 11 support, that defendants “compromised [(sic)] an association-in-fact enterprise [that] . . .
12 . operated together to achieve a common purpose, one of which was the carrying out of 13 racketeering activity.” FAC ¶ 168. It goes on to state that the “enterprise operated 14 together to achieve a common purpose, one of which was the carrying out of 15 racketeering activity.” Id. These ipse dixit assertions say nothing about the nature or 16 existence of the purported enterprise. Nor do they contain facts showing that the 17 defendants made up a criminal enterprise. See Gomez, 2015 WL 4270042, at *10 18 (citation omitted) (“[E]ven when an enterprise exists, it must be sufficiently distinct 19 from the defendant as to have its own affairs independent of the defendant’s affairs.”); 20 see also Crichton v. Golden Rule Ins. Co., 576 F.3d 392, 399 (7th Cir. 2009) (“[A]n 21 association-in-fact enterprise must be meaningfully distinct from the entities that 22 comprise it such that the entity sought to be held liable can be said to have controlled 23 and conducted the enterprise rather than merely its own affairs.”).

24 The FAC next attempt to allege a distinct enterprise also fails. Again, Aetna 25 merely states, in conclusory fashion, that this enterprise “operated as an ongoing 26 organization that functioned as a continuing unit that worked to achieve an outcome 27 that could not be achieved alone, and was created and/or used as a tool to effectuate a 28 pattern of racketeering activity, and the Enterprise had the common purpose of doing

1 the same.” Id. ¶ 169(b). In fact, the FAC lists out five purported “different associations 2 in fact,” id. ¶ 170(b), but includes absolutely no explanation as to the functioning of 3 each of these enterprises or their specific purposes. These statements are insufficient to 4 survive dismissal. See Gardner v. StarKist Co., 418 F. Supp. 3d 443, 461 (N.D. Cal.
5 2019) (“Simply characterizing routine commercial dealing as a RICO enterprise is not 6 enough.”). Aetna is unable to demonstrate that an association-in-fact enterprise existed 7 because of its failure to properly plead a common criminal purpose, and continuity. See 8 Boyle, 556 U.S. at 946 (a plaintiff alleging an association-in-fact enterprise must assert 9 that the defendants comprised “a group of persons associated together for a common 10 purpose of engaging in a course of conduct”).

11 B. A Service Provider like Zealie Cannot Be a Proper Defendant
12 to a RICO Claim, and Aetna Has Not Alleged That the Zealie 13 Defendants Participated in Any RICO Conduct

14 A defendant cannot be held liable under section 1962 “unless [it] has participated 15 in the operation or management of the enterprise itself.” Reves, 507 U.S. at 183. Proving 16 the “conduct” element of RICO requires that Plaintiffs establish that the Zealie 17 Defendants “conduct[ed] or participate[d], directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such 18 enterprise’s affairs.” 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c). A defendant must “have some part in 19 directing [the enterprise’s] affairs.” Reves, 507 U.S. at 179. “[A] defendant does not 20 ‘direct’ the enterprise’s affairs by ‘simply being involved’ or ‘performing services for 21 the enterprise.’” In re Outlaw Lab., LP Litig., 2020 WL 5552558, at *8 (S.D. Cal. Sep.
22 16, 2020) (quoting Walter v. Drayson, 538 F.3d 1244, 1249 (9th Cir. 2008)); see also 23 Baumer v. Pachl, 8 F.3d 1341, 1344 (9th Cir. 1993) (affirming dismissal of RICO 24 claims because the court deemed the conduct “was limited to providing [] services to 25 the limited partnership and EPA”). Nor is it “enough that [a defendant] failed to stop 26 illegal activity” of the enterprise. Walter, 538 F.3d at 1248. A defendant must have 27 participated in the “operation or management” of the enterprise’s affairs by, for 28 example, “occup[ying] a position in the chain of command” or “knowingly implement[ing] [the enterprise’s] decisions.” Id. at 1248–49.

1        It is well-settled that a service provider acting pursuant to a routine commercial 2 agreement is not a proper defendant to a RICO claim. See, e.g., Gomez, 2015 WL
3 4270042, at *11 (“there has been remarkable uniformity in [the] conclusion that RICO 4 liability must be predicated on a relationship more substantial than a routine contract 5 between a service provider and its client”); see also Fraser v. Team Health Holdings, 6 Inc., 2022 WL 971579, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 31, 2022) (“Courts routinely reject 7 attempts to characterize routine commercial relationships as RICO enterprises.”); 8 Gardner v. Starkist Co., 418 F. Supp. 3d 443, 461 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (stating that 9 “characterizing routine commercial dealing as a RICO enterprise is not enough”). The 10 rationale behind this case law applies with even greater force where, as here, the 11 company at issue is not one with specialized knowledge (as compared to, for example, 12 an attorney or an accountant). “[R]outine commercial relationships’ such as those 13 between a business and service provider like a bank or credit card processor also 14 generally do not suffice to create a RICO enterprise.” Skye Orthobiologics, LLC v. CTM 15 Biomedical, LLC, 2021 WL 6104163, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 30, 2021) (quoting Gomez, 16 2015 WL 4270042, at *9–11) (collecting cases). Characterizing routine commercial 17 dealing as a RICO enterprise is not enough. See Gomez, 2015 WL 4270042, at *11
18 (“RICO liability must be predicated on a relationship more substantial than a routine 19 contract between a service provider and its client.”).

20        Zealie “provide[s] specialized administrative billing services to the . . . Treatment 21 Entity Defendants.” FAC ¶ 40. It “handles the submission of the claim forms for [those] 22 entities.” Id. Aetna contends that several of the treating entity defendants “could not 23 [have] complete[d] their scheme without the help of billing entities” because those 24 entities actually submitted the invoices to Aetna. Id. ¶¶ 106, 108. This is akin to, for 25 example, someone using their cellphone provider’s cell towers to transmit information 26 in furtherance of a RICO scheme. That would not make the cellphone provider a proper 27 RICO defendant—the company is merely providing a service that is then arguably being 28 abused by the customer. Zealie, which was an administrative service provider that dealt

1 exclusively with the finalization and submission of claims, cannot be liable for the 2 conduct of the Treating Entity Defendants in determining what may (or may not) have 3 been medically necessary and/or rendering treatment to the facilities' patients. The 4 focus of the alleged scheme is on the provision of allegedly illegitimate services to 5 patients. Id. ¶ 166. As a third-party billing service provider, Zealie was not involved in 6 any aspect of patient treatment. Aetna is familiar with the manner in which billing 7 service providers, like Zealie, operate. Billing service providers make sure that the 8 billing codes reflected on the bills properly correspond with the treatment information 9 provided. There can be no alteration of patient medical records by Zealie—Zalie does 10 not have the access to do so. Zealie simply helps treating entities ensure the billing 11 codes reflected on the claims submitted correspond with the treatments the facilities say 12 were provided. See, e.g., id. ¶¶ 114–18.

13 At best, Aetna has acknowledged that the Zealie Defendants “know what should 14 be in medical records to receive higher reimbursements for claims.” Id. ¶ 118. But the 15 value of their billing services is in their industry knowledge, not their treatment 16 knowledge. Zealie assists healthcare providers in submitting bills that accurately reflect 17 the treatments rendered based on information customers provide. Medical billing 18 servicers, like Zealie, are not meeting with patients, interviewing them, or making 19 determinations about their treatment. That is not within their purview. Zealie was not 20 responsible for the content of the bills inasmuch as they contain medical, patient-21 specific information. That information was provided to Zealie by the treating entities.
22 The web link relied upon by Aetna, see FAC at 32 n.11, makes clear the extent of 23 Zealie’s involvement. Specifically, it states: “Our billing team audits and confirms your 24 billing by using your electronic health records system to make sure you’re reaching the 25 medical necessity requirements.” Zealie goes on to clarify its role as an administrative 26 billing service provider, even including an example: “We inform you if you’re not 27 meeting the requirements before claims are submitted. For example, your notes may not 28 meet the criteria for a claim. We’ll identify it and bring it to your attention.” In other

1 words, even where Zealie identifies a facial deficiency with the claims to be submitted, 2 it merely advises its client of this issue. It does not make edits to medical records or 3 patient data relayed to insurers like Aetna.

4 Thus, based on Aetna's own allegations, Zealie was not in any way involved in 5 the decision of whether and how often to treat patients, nor was it privy to the 6 determinations that certain treatments were (or were not) medically necessary. Those 7 duties, presumably, were attributable to the treating entities. See, e.g., id. ¶¶ 94–105
8 (describing the alleged actions of the Treating Entity Defendants). Given its limited, 9 administrative role, Zealie did not have access to any of the patients and could not have 10 participated in the scheme alleged in the FAC. This routine service provider relationship 11 is insufficient to assert Zealie's participation in the RICO enterprise. See Gomez, 2015 12 WL 4270042, at *11 (finding RICO claim that attempted to turn a commercial 13 relationship into a RICO enterprise deficient as a matter of law). The FAC confirms that 14 Zealie did what is traditionally expected of a third-party billing service provider; i.e., it 15 submitted claims for reimbursement to Aetna on behalf of its customers. FAC ¶ 40.

16 Aetna's assertion that Zealie is splitting funds with the Treating Entity 17 Defendants, id. ¶ 117, is little more than an attempt by Aetna to mislead this Court.
18 Aetna is well aware that medical billing service providers are paid a percentage of 19 invoices submitted and reimbursed. That is precisely what occurred here, and Aetna has 20 failed to demonstrate otherwise. The suggestion of any improper conduct is entirely 21 inappropriate. Aetna has failed to allege facts that would convert the relationship among 22 Zealie and the treating entity defendants from a routine business relationship into a 23 criminal enterprise. Aetna would have been required to allege that Zealie and the other 24 members of the would-be enterprise had some separate common purpose. For example, 25 in a case asserting a common purpose between vehicle manufacturers and designers to 26 conceal vehicle defects to increase sales, the court held that the design, manufacturing, 27 distribution, testing, and sale of the vehicles at issue simply described the “primary 28 business activities” of the individual parties and could not show a separate common

1 purpose to establish a RICO enterprise. Shaw v. Nissan North America, Inc., 220 F.
2 Supp. 3d. 1046, 1056 (C.D. Cal. 2016) (citing In re Toyota Motor Corp. UA, 826 F.
3 Supp. 2d 1180, 1202 (C.D. Cal. 2011)). There is no such relationship alleged here. The 4 FAC is clear that Zealie was nothing more than a third-party company that provided 5 billing services to the treating defendants. FAC ¶ 40.

6 Mr. Beheshti, the founder of Zealie, is even more removed from the purported 7 RICO scheme. The FAC falsely asserts that he was “previously” in charge of a different 8 defendant that “was identified as participating and submitting claims for patients 9 obtained through illegal body brokering” in a completely unrelated matter. Id. ¶¶ 41– 10 43. These allegations are untrue, and there are no allegations that connect Mr. Beheshti, 11 directly, to the RICO scheme. Nor is there any connection between Mr. Beheshti 12 personally and the alleged conduct of the other Defendants. It is insufficient to allege in 13 conclusory fashion, that Mr. Beheshti “personally worked . . . to allow the furtherance 14 of the schemes alleged.” Id. ¶ 41. Nothing in the FAC alleges Mr. Beheshti’s 15 involvement in any predicate acts. As it relates to the Zealie Defendants, the only acts 16 alleged were carried out by Zealie through the rendition of administrative billing 17 services. Id. ¶ 176 (alleging the submission of claims constitutes the predicate acts).
18 There is no connection between Mr. Beheshti’s alleged actions and the RICO scheme.
19 Thus, the FAC also fails to demonstrate a pattern of racketeering activity as to Mr.
20 Beheshti.

21 C. The FAC Fails to Plead a Pattern of Racketeering Activity

22 A pattern of racketeering activity is comprised of two elements. First, defendants 23 must have committed at least two predicate acts, and second, those acts must “amount 24 to or pose a threat of continued criminal activity.” H.J. Inc. v. Nw. Bell Tel. Co., 492 25 U.S. 229, 239 (1989); see also Allwaste, Inc. v. Hecht, 65 F.3d 1523, 1527 (9th Cir.
26 1995) (quotations omitted) (a RICO plaintiff must establish “a pattern of criminal 27 activity” that “requires that the predicate criminal acts be related and continuous”). The 28 Ninth Circuit has “adopted a test for [a] pattern which inquires whether the predicate

1 acts are sporadic or isolated. If they are isolated and sporadic, then they cannot form a 2 ‘pattern.’’’ Ikuno v. Yip, 912 F.2d 306, 309 (9th Cir. 1990) (citing Sun Sav. & Loan v.
3 Dierdorff, 825 F.2d 187, 194 (9th Cir. 1987)). In other words, pleading the existence of 4 a pattern of racketeering activity before this Court requires that Aetna establish both 5 continuity of the scheme and that the participants of the scheme, including each of 6 Zealie and Beheshti, have committed at least two predicate acts which are not isolated 7 or sporadic in furtherance thereof. The failure to sufficiently allege at least two predicate 8 acts or the element of continuity necessitates the dismissal of a RICO claim. See, e.g., 9 Sanchez, 2011 WL 13224623, at *5 (“Plaintiff also cannot prove that Defendant 10 engaged in a pattern of racketeering activity because he has not alleged any facts 11 showing two predicate acts with sufficient continuity and relationship.”); Puana v.
12 Kealoha, 2022 WL 17811439, at *2 (D. Haw. Dec. 19, 2022) (“Because Plaintiffs 13 neither plausibly allege at least two predicate acts nor the element of continuity, their 14 Civil RICO Claim . . . must be dismissed.” (citation omitted)).

15 “Continuity is both a closed- and open-ended concept, referring either to a closed 16 period of repeated conduct, or to past conduct that by its nature projects into the future 17 with a threat of repetition.” H.J. Inc., 492 U.S. at 249 (citation omitted). Closed-ended 18 continuity exists where a series of related predicate acts were committed over a 19 substantial period of time. Acts that only extend “over a few weeks or months and 20 threaten[] no future criminal conduct do not satisfy [the closed-ended continuity]
21 requirement.” Id. at 242. The Ninth Circuit has “recognized that RICO’s continuity 22 requirement is not satisfied if plaintiffs have merely alleged a single fraud perpetrated 23 on a single victim.” United Energy Owners Comm., Inc. v. U.S. Energy Mgmt. Sys., Inc., 24 837 F.2d 356, 360 (9th Cir. 1988) (quoting Cal. Architectural Bldg. Prods. v. Franciscan Ceramics, Inc., 818 F.2d 1466, 1469 (9th Cir. 1987)); see also Palantir Techs. Inc. v. Abramowitz, 2021 WL 2400979, at *10 (N.D. Cal. June 11, 2021) 25 (dismissing the plaintiff’s complaint and finding closed-ended continuity was not 26 sufficiently pleaded where plaintiff alleged only “a singular goal . . . against a single 27

1 victim"); Tirgari v. Kazemipour, 2022 WL 17724151, at *3–4 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 15, 2022)
2 (same). Open-ended continuity exists where either the conduct is ongoing or a plaintiff 3 can demonstrate that the misconduct “projects into the future with a threat of repetition 4 the threat of continuing criminal activity.” Turner v. Cook, 362 F.3d 1219, 1229 (9th 5 Cir. 2004) (citation omitted); Allwaste, 65 F.3d at 1528.

6 The FAC does not allege a pattern of racketeering activity because it does not 7 contain allegations that would support any finding regarding the continuity of the 8 purported scheme. First, closed-ended continuity did not exist here. Taking the 9 allegations in the FAC as true, the only victim of the purported RICO scheme is Aetna.
10 Though Aetna attempts to widen the scope of victims by alleging that it “was not the 11 only victim,” because “other insurers and health plans that provide similar health 12 benefits” also received “false invoices/medical claims,” Aetna does not plead additional 13 facts to support this contention. FAC ¶¶ 74–75. Aetna’s further attempt to claim, by 14 way of a parenthetical, that “its members” were also defrauded, likewise fails given the 15 lack of factual allegations. Id. ¶ 75. And, even assuming arguendo that other insurers 16 and/or Aetna’s members, were in fact harmed by the purported scheme, Aetna would 17 not have standing to assert those claims on their behalf. See Glob. Master Int’l Grp., Inc. v. Esmond Nat., Inc., 76 F.4th 1266, 1271 (9th Cir. 2023) (“A civil RICO ‘plaintiff only has standing if, and can only recover to the extent that, he has been injured in his business or property by the conduct constituting the violation.’” (emphasis added) (quoting Canyon Cnty. v. Syngenta Seeds, Inc., 519 F.3d 969, 975 (9th Cir. 2008))).
18 This case as alleged is one where—at most—a single fraud was purportedly perpetrated 19 on a single victim. Continuity fails on those grounds. See Metaxas v. Lee, 503 F. Supp.
20 3d 923, 944 (N.D. Cal. 2020) (finding complaint “[did] not establish closed-ended 21 continuity because Defendants’ scheme targeted only one victim . . . with the regulatory 22 agencies at most the merely incidental victims of the scheme”).
23

24 Open-ended continuity likewise fails. There are no allegations to suggest the 25 alleged scheme at issue is ongoing. The FAC states the exact opposite—the scheme was 26

1 discovered by Aetna (as well as several legal authorities and regulatory bodies) and has 2 therefore concluded. See, e.g., FAC ¶¶ 1, 18–19, 23, 42, 86, 96, 110. Though Aetna 3 again attempts to misleadingly claim that the scheme is ongoing because the entities 4 still submit claims at present, the mere submission of claims does not mean that there 5 is “a threat of continued racketeering activity.” Id. ¶ 173. Given the discovery of the 6 purportedly fraudulent scheme, the fraudulent conduct and any alleged injury has 7 necessarily ceased. Aetna therefore cannot satisfy open-ended continuity because the 8 scheme has concluded and the illegal conduct is not open-ended. See, e.g., Zimmie v.
9 Warner, 2022 WL 2155970, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 15, 2022) (dismissing RICO claim 10 that failed to satisfy the continuity requirement where the alleged conduct had ended).
11 In any event, Zealie immediately terminated its relationship with the Young Group as a 12 result of the allegations in this litigation.

13 D. Because the RICO Claim Fails, the Conspiracy Claim Also 14 Fails

15 Finally, because the substantive RICO claim fails, the conspiracy claim under 16 section 1962(d) likewise fails. See, e.g., Smith v. U.S. Bank, N.A., 2011 WL 7628515, 17 at *9 (D. Or. Oct. 26, 2011) (“[W]here the plaintiff has failed to allege the requisite 18 substantive elements of RICO, a RICO conspiracy claim cannot stand.” (citing Howard 19 v. Am. Online Inc., 208 F.3d 741, 751 (9th Cir. 2000); Religious Tech. Ctr. v.
20 Wollersheim, 971 F.2d 364, 367 n. 8 (9th Cir. 1992)); Hill v. Opus Corp., 841 F. Supp.
21 2d 1070, 1103 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (“As plaintiffs have failed to allege an underlying RICO
22 violation, their conspiracy claim under 18 U.S.C. § 1962(d) fails. Because plaintiffs 23 have not adequately pled a substantive violation under § 1962(c), they cannot allege a 24 conspiracy to violate RICO.”). Aetna’s failure to plead civil RICO as against the Zealie 25 Defendants is fatal to their allegations that the Zealie Defendants participated in any 26 conspiracy to violated RICO.

27

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Defendants Ali Beheshti and Zealie LLC respectfully request that the Court grant this Motion and dismiss the FAC against them with prejudice.<sup>4</sup> The Zealie Defendants further respectfully request that the Court deny Aetna leave to further amend the FAC as against the Zealie Defendants.

<sup>4</sup> “A plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction must establish [1] that [it] is likely to succeed on the merits, [2] that [it] is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, [3] that the balance of equities tips in [its] favor, and [4] that an injunction is in the public interest.” Johnson v. Couturier, 572 F.3d 1067, 1078 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008)). Aetna has failed to show that it is likely to succeed on the merits, and additionally, Aetna has not sufficiently alleged that it will suffer irreparable harm if the Court does not grant injunctive relief. “Typically, monetary harm does not constitute irreparable harm.” Williams v. Lobel Fin. Corp., 2023 WL 3483227, at *5 (C.D. Cal. May 15, 2023) (quotation omitted). “Economic damages are not traditionally considered irreparable because the injury can later be remedied by a damage award.” Id. (quotation omitted). A plaintiff typically suffers irreparable harm only when it “suffers a substantial injury, that is not accurately measurable or adequately compensable by money damages. . . .” Id. (quotation omitted). Aetna has alleged nothing in the FAC that would constitute irreparable harm. It has only alleged economic damages that can be remedied by a damage award should it prevail in this litigation. The Court should disregard Aetna’s half-baked injunctive claim.
